Assistant Director also shared that certification process is not that easy as the process is followed by registration under APEDA (Agricultural and Processed Food Products Export Development Authority), internal audit by APEDA. The service provider looks after the registration of farmers, training, documentation, Internal Control System (ICS), management, facilitation, marketing, formation of FPCs etc. “After completion of 3 years, if everything is fine after audit, the organic certification is given by a certification agency,” he added. During Phase I, the certifying agency was ‘Onecert International’ and during Phase II, SGS was the certifying agency. SIMFED was the only service
